April 8, 2020

0.0.1 ABSTRACT

We will be converting the relational game_inventory database that we created on Assignment 2 to NoSQL database. We will be using mongodb atlas to store the data. We will also be storing the tweets for a specific game title on twitter collection in mongodb atlas.

0.0.2 Collections

We have two collections in the NoSQL database. One is Game_Inventory and twitter collection

Game_Inventory G_ID : the unique id for the game which is related to tweets we are collecting in mongodb database.

G_NAME : Title of the Game

GENRE : Genre of the Game

DEVELOPER : Developer of the game

PLATFORM : Platform in which the game can be played

TOTAL_SHIPPED : Total no. of games shipped

CRITIC_SCORE : Rating of the game based on critics

USER_SCORE : Rating of the game based on users

YEAR : the year when the game was published twitter __id : the unique id of the tweet generated by the twitter api.

G_ID : the unique id for the game which is related to tweets we are collecting in mongodb database.

tweet_text : the tweet related to the game tweet_created : the time of the tweet when the tweet was posted tweet_loc : the location of the tweet when it was posted user_name : the username of the twitter account who made the tweet user_description : the description of the twitter account retweets : no. of retweets of the tweet fav_count : count of users who favourited the tweet followers_count : no. of followers of the corresponding the twitter verified : checks whether the user is a verified account or not

0.1 Design Explanation:

If it were a SQL database we could have stored the values into the database using the relational tables and replicate the original database using JOIN queries.

Since we want to create a NoSQL database, we want to store the data in form of documents. Before we dig deeper into how to create them, let us take a look at what documents and collections actually mean in terms of database designs.

0.2 Collections:

Collections in NoSQL are analogous to the Tables in the SQL databases. Insert, Update and Delete operations can be performed on a collection.

0.3 Documents:

Each record of a master table in Relational database can be considered as a document here. For example in the game inventory database we have data for each movie and we store all the other tables in relation with the key given in the game inventory tables. In the NoSQL database, each game will be a stand alone document on its own.

0.4 Creation of the documents:

The below code is used for converting our tables into documents which will further be stored in a collection. We use nested for loops to store all the data related to a particular game in a single document.

We have stored the game_inventory table from the Assignment 2 to collection named Game_Inventory, and we will be scrapping the tweets for the game Final Fantasy VII game into another collection called Twitter to get the corresponding tweets.

0.5 Importing CSV files into mongoDB into gameDetails collection

gameinvent = db.Game_Inventory result = gameinvent.insert_many(record_)
```

0.6 Answering the questions

0.6.1 1. What are tags associated with a person, place or things?

Here, we used 'Final Fantasy VII', 'final fantasy 7', '#ff7r', '#FF7R', 'finalfantasy7' as tags to scrap the tweets for the game 'Final Fantasy VII'. Tags associated with a game can be related to name, genre and platform too.

Tags used: 'Final Fantasy VII', 'final fantasy 7', '#ff7r', '#FF7R', 'finalfantasy7'

[212]: tags = pd.DataFrame(columns=['Name', 'Genre', 'Platform'])
i=0
for doc in db.Game_Inventory.find():
    tags.loc[i] = [doc.get('G_NAME'), doc.get('GENRE'), doc.get('PLATFORM')]
    i += 1
tags
```

```
[212]:
```

	Name	Genre	Platform
0	Mario Kart Wii	Racing	Wii
1	Wii Sports Resort	Sports	Wii
2	New Super Mario Bros.	Platform	DS
3	New Super Mario Bros. Wii	Platform	Wii
4	Wii Play	Misc	Wii
..	...	...	...
59	Red Steel	Shooter	Wii
60	Phantasy Star Portable	Role-Playing	PSP
61	Bionic Commando	Adventure	X360
62	The Conduit	Shooter	Wii
63	Submarine Titans	Strategy	PC

[64 rows x 3 columns]

0.6.2 2. What social media users are like other social media users in your domain?

We can search for users where the locations are same.

[192]: col = ['user_id', 'user_name', 'user_description', 'location', 'followers_count', 'verified'] location = pd.DataFrame(columns = col)
i=0
for tweet in db.twitter.find():
    location.loc[i] = [tweet.get('_id'), tweet.get('user_name'), tweet.get('user_description'), tweet.get('tweet_loc'), tweet.get('followers_count'), tweet.get('verified')]
    i += 1
loc_final = location.groupby('location')['location'].agg('count').sort_values(ascending = False) loc_df = pd.DataFrame({'location':loc_final.index, 'count':loc_final.values})
loc_df.head(10)
```

```
[192]:
```

	location	count
0	Nibelheim	17
1	5
2	Los Angeles, CA	5
3	England, United Kingdom	5
4	In your heart	3
5		3
6	Everywhere and always.	3
7	New York, USA	3
8	Chez Moi	2
9	United States	2

From the above table we can see that almost 17 of the users have put Nibelheim as their tweeting location. It's pretty interesting since Nibelheim is a fictional city in Final Fantasy VII. This can show that most of the users who have tweeted about Final Fantasy VII are fans of the game.

[193]: location.loc[location['verified'] == True].sort_values(by = ['followers_count'], ascending = False)

[193]:

From the above table we can see that there are 8 twitter users where their accounts are verified. Verified accounts shows that accounts of public interest are authentic.

0.6.3 3. What people, places or things are popular in your domain?

We can check the no. of followers count of each users to determine the popular people in our domain, as well as to check the no. of

[173]: import pprint flag = 0
col = ['user_name', 'followers_count'] foll = pd.DataFrame(columns = col)
i=0
for tweet in db.twitter.find():
    foll.loc[i] = [tweet.get('user_name'), tweet.get('followers_count')] i=i+1
foll = foll.sort_values(by = 'followers_count', ascending = False)

367	flaviagasi	43022
250	Ligero1	40240

0.6.4 4. What people, places or things are trending in your domain?

We can check the trending tweets of twitter by calculating various tweets with an average of favourites count and retweets count.

[177]: trends = pd.
      ↪ DataFrame(columns=['user_id', 'user_name', 'favourites_count', 'retweets_count', 'followers_cou
```

```
[178]: i=0
      for tweet in db.twitter.find():
          trends.loc[i] = [tweet.get('_id'), tweet.get('user_name'), tweet.
      ↪ get('fav_count'), tweet.get('retweets'), tweet.get('followers_count')]
          i += 1
```

```
[184]: trnd_fav = trends.groupby('favourites_count')['favourites_count'].agg('count').
      ↪ sort_values(ascending = False)
      trnd_retweets = trends.groupby('retweets_count')['retweets_count'].agg('count').
      ↪ sort_values(ascending = False)
      trnd_fav_df = pd.DataFrame({"fav_count":trnd_fav.index, "count":trnd_fav.
      ↪ values}) trnd_retweets_df = pd.DataFrame({'retweet_count':trnd_retweets.index, 'count': ↪ trnd_retweets.values})
```

```
[185]: trnd_fav_df
```

```
[185]:   fav_count  count
0         0     411
```

```
[186]: trnd_retweets_df
```

```
[186]:   retweet_count  count
0             0     411
```

From the above data, we can see that all the tweets that we have scrapped only have 0 favourite count and 0 retweet count. Since we scrapped tweets that were created recently, that might be one reason why the tweets have 0 favourite count and 0 retweet. Instead of using favourites count and retweet count, we can count the no. of followers a user has to show that since they have a large no. of followers their post will reach a lot of audience.

[187]: foll.head(5) # People
```

```
[187]:   user_name  followers_count
285    BRKsEDU         1552487
187    VG247           210100
```

250	Ligero1	40240

```
[190]: loc_df.head() # Location

```
[190]:
```

1 Audit

1.1 AUDIT VALIDITY/ACCURACY:

We say data is accurate only when it is neat and with no null or junk values. Since the data for our MongoDB is directly pulled from the as csv files MySQL database which was in normalized form, we can safely say that our data loaded into the MongoDB doesn't have any null values or junk values.

1.2 AUDIT COMPLETENESS:

The data loaded into the MongoDB was from the SQL database that was ATOMICITY there is no need to perform any explicit audit for our NoSQL MongoDB data. And moreover with NoSQL the database doesn't follow any schema design and it's with the developer's choice we schema we used for loading the MongoDB was same as that of MySQL.

1.3 AUDIT CONSISTENCY/UNIFORMITY:

The datasets which have been used in this assignment was from our MySQL database which had a uniform relationship between each of the dataset since they are linked to each other by a common attribute.

2 Report

2.0.1 Files used :

game_inventory.csv, developer.csv, genre.csv, platform.csv, game_inventory_mongo.csv

2.0.2 Files generated:

NA

Here the CSV files used as inputs were already in the same structure of how we needed them in the NoSQL. So no files were created from the code.

2.0.3 Code used:

Step 1. Reading of Data The csv files were read in python dictionaries and were all loaded into the mongodb as such, since we needed Collections in the same order.

Step 2. Load the data into Mongodb

We use the pymongo package to load the game_inventory dictionary to create the database in Mongodb

Step 3. Reading Twitter Data:

Here we used Twitter to generate live data from the tweets that were posted on the social media Twitter. Using the API Keys we connect to twitter API to fetch the data for any keyword we supplied.

The twitter data were loaded into the Mongodb primarily to answer the use case questions.

Using the StreamListener module from the Tweepy package we were able to read the tweets data directly into the Mongodb. Since Mongodb doesn't have any structured schema defined loading the data directly from tweet into the dictionaries were straight forward.

2.1 CONCLUSION

Primary focus of this assignment is to learn how to move the data from a Structured RDBMS into a NoSQL database like Mongodb. Also cleaning of data, checking null values present in the data, data munging and to reformat the data to fit into a NoSQL schema.
